Rowan county would profit by a strong dose of the law.

A new comet has been discovered by the French astronomers.

The colored voters of Kentucky are snatching under the nonrecognition of their claims by the Republican State Convention, and will think twice before they follow implicitly the Republican leaders.

The Union Local reads it correctly in the following quotation. It says:

"Capt. Adam Liter, a pioneer of Ohio county, and a long-standing Democrat, has been induced to announce as an independent candidate for the State Legislature. The old man will be 'snowed under,' for the party lines of that county are tightly drawn by the Democratic and Republican nominees."

The Governor has issued invitations to the people of Kentucky to be present at the memorial services of Joel T. Hart, on Saturday, June 18, at Frankfort. On that day the remains of Kentucky's revered son will be placed in their final resting place in the State Cemetery.

HARDINSBURG is very much elated over the prospect of a speech from the Hon. Henry Watterson, at their picnic on July 24. And well they may be, for no man in the realm of American journalism is recognized as more brilliant than he, and as a power in the political world, his place is by no means inferior.

SINCE Capt. Liter has really announced himself as an independent candidate, would it not be a good idea to have another independent man on the track to discuss outside issues with him? Kinsolving and Milligan will be busy looking after the interest of their own respective parties, as well as their personal interests.

LOGAN county furnishes another marvelous ghost story; this time from the southern part of the county. A bell in an old deserted church is tolled, red lights are seen, and ghost-like figures move to and fro in the ruined building. Verily, we believe Mulhatten has recently been in that vicinity, and given full play to his imagination.

HON. JNO. FELAND is no longer the Republican candidate for Attorney General of Kentucky. He says his business affairs would not permit him to make a canvass, and then he cannot quite endorse the labor plan in his party platform. He evidently does not endorse the idea of laboring in a hopeless race for an office, which is to be filled by a good Democrat.

JUDGE CHAS. EAVES, of Greenville, while attending court here last week, was elected special judge in a case of some importance. Judge Eaves is a lawyer of great ability, a man of untarnished reputation and should be honored by a seat on the appellate bench where his great powers as a judge would win for him the respect of the entire people of the state.

The editor of the Morganfield Sun is a living example of the tenacity of parties in the unity of nature intensifying itself while acted upon by a disintegrative force, as the following quotation will show:

"Our quality is rapidly approximating a homogeneous unity," said a scientific youth to his girl the other evening, as the force of attraction culminated in an intimate osculatory connection. "We just are, and had to fly off at a tangent to preserve our corporeal integrity."

REV. LOUIS H. VOYLES, of Millwood, filled Dr. Coleman's pulpit last Sunday, by request. His theme was "The knowledge of the forgiveness of sins," and his presentation of it was forcible, clear and christian-like. Bro. Voyles, while young in the ministry, is recognized as one of the rising and influential ministers of his denomination. He made a good impression on our people, and they would gladly hear him again.

The colored Republicans of Mason county held a mass convention in Maysville last Thursday in which they condemned the action of the Republican State Convention in ignoring them on the state ticket. They resolved to cut themselves loose from the party and will hold a convention on the 25th inst., to nominate one of their race as a candidate for the legislature. Other counties will probably follow this action, and the Republicans' strength be weakened thereby.

In Kentucky there are over six hundred miles of new railway under construction at the present time, nor does the development stop here for the 'eternal hills' are giving up their garnered treasures to aid man in his progressive work. The smoke of the blast furnace, the sound of the miner's pickaxe and bar, the sound of the woodman's axe, all are unmistakable signs of prosperity, and all this is done under Democratic administration. Yet we hear it said that Kentucky is retrograding in the great struggle for existence and supremacy.

The Owensboro Messenger rightly divines the fidelity of Ohio county Democrats, when it says:

"Capt. Adam Liter has announced himself as an independent candidate for the legislature in Ohio county, on the agricultural and labor ticket. Capt. Liter is a fine old gentleman, but if he doesn't wake up from his present state of foolishness, innocence about the first Tuesday morning in August to find that he has been made a tool of, then all signs fail. Ohio county Democrats will stand by and elect their nominee."

The Democrats of this county have made a record in the past for fidelity to the eternal principles of their party, and will vindicate the justice of that record by electing their nominee.

The good people of Owensboro decided to endorse one hundred thousand dollars bonds of the L. St. L. & T. R. R., on condition that work on the road be begun from their place at once. The railroad people completed their survey to the city more than two weeks ago, since when the city council has persistently refused them admittance to the city until late last week they passed such an ordinance as it is thought the railroad men will not act upon. This will very probably lead to Owensboro's being left at a very inconvenient distance from the road. If she were wise, Owensboro would profit by the experience of her neighbors whose material prosperity has suffered so much from want of the very thing she now seems to thrust aside.

To-day the campaign opens by a grand barbecue at Lexington, the bluegrass capital. Speakers of national reputation have been invited to be present and participate. It will be a magnificent affair and the representative Democracy of the nation will be there in all their glory. The state has been divided into fifteen campaign districts. Number three, being composed of the counties of Union, Hopkins, Webster, McLean, Henderson, Ohio, Davies, Muhlenberg and Hancock. We would suggest Hartford as the best place to have the campaign barbecue in this district, and 18th of July as the date for same. There is no mistake about it, old Kentucky is awake for this campaign, and the Democrats will not play the bulldozing game either. Let Democrats work unceasingly, and great will be their reward.

AS WE SEE IT.

Since Capt. Liter's formal announcement through the HERALD, we have made inquiry of different prominent men from various parts of the county of both political parties, as to the effect his candidacy would have upon the race, and the almost unanimous opinion of both parties is, that they want no independent candidate. This to a thinking man is sufficient evidence, that Capt. Liter is simply a tool in the hands of a few who are not satisfied with the regular nominees, and that as the case stands at present, would draw about as many votes from Milligan as from Kinsolving. It is a matter of serious regret among the Democrats, that so good a man as Capt. Liter would allow himself to be sacrificed in this manner, and ruin forever all his prospects for future preferment. It will not be the policy of the HERALD to vilify any one, simply because he disagrees with us in opinions, for that would be but the cant of demagoguery, but to treat all men fairly since all are men of a common brotherhood. Still, when it comes to the advocacy of principles and measures, we desire unequivocally to advocate what we believe to be of the greatest good to the greatest number. Perhaps very few Democrats have thought seriously upon the importance, nay necessity, of electing their nominee for the Legislature. The next General Assembly will have to elect a United States Senator, do you want the vote of your county cast for a Democrat or a Republican? It will have to deal with the constitutional question, and many other questions of vital importance; to whom do you wish the interest of your county intrusted, Kinsolving or Milligan? Personalities should not influence us in elections of such importance for we might find when too late, that in order "to spite the face, the nose had been cut off."

Again, we are on the eve of another Presidential election, and it behooves the Democracy throughout these whole United States to work solidly and harmoniously for the great principles of Democratic and representative free government. To our Democratic friends, we would say, think well over these things and remember the importance of the coming election, and work for the nominee of the party, who will represent your principles and do your will in legislative councils.

WORK.
Although "Thou shalt earn thy bread by the sweat of thy brow," was said to man by his Creator when He pronounced a curse upon the earth for man's disobedience, labor has proven to be man's greatest blessing. Contentment comes at eventide, when the laborer looks back on a day's work well performed; with contentment comes peace, with peace, prosperity, with prosperity a new life. The man who expects to live without work, is the man who is most dissatisfied with what life brings to him. Energy and activity must precede growth, and growth precedes perfection. The Hardin county Messenger catches the true inspiration in a well-written editorial, a part of which we here reproduce:

"No people can be prosperous or happy who are one-third of the year idle and unemployed. A people cannot develop all their strength and power unless all the people are kept busy. A flourishing people must be always occupied at work which brings results. A state is dead and lifeless if its people where there are no remunerative occupations to engage their citizens and consume their time. This idle labor must be put to work. It cannot go on the farms. It must be put in the mines and manufacturing. We must unite our powers, bring together our money, and build manufacturing all over the state, and put all this labor to producing wealth. It will cause us to have a vast improvement in all such classes, and benefit the farming community. The smoke stack can be made to rise in every village in the state, and the hum of machinery be heard everywhere. Our iron, timber, hemp, cotton and tobacco can be fashioned by the artisan and mechanic for us here, as well as elsewhere, and we can reap the profits of it all instead of allowing others to do so. All must see by such a course how vast will be the increase of our wealth."

GOLDEN WEDDING.

On last Saturday at his home near Calhoun, Mr. Robert C. Moseley and wife, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day, by again renewing the marriage contract. Dr. Coleman was the officiating minister, and in a lecture on the men, women and habits of fifty years ago, he related how Mr. and Mrs. Moseley had married, gathered together their worldly possessions, which consisted of a two year old colt and a ten year old cow on his part, and $25 and a bed on the part of the bride, and come to Hartford to begin life. Those who heard Dr. Coleman, pronounce his lecture and ceremony one of the happiest and most impressive efforts of his life. The table, a square one hundred and thirty feet around, groined under the most elegant array of the fullness, fatness and delicacies of the land. More than three hundred guests were present from California, Kansas, Indiana, Florida and Kentucky. There were present of children six, of grandchildren thirty-five of great-grandchildren three. Mrs. Jno. E. Robinson is the only living witness of his marriage, and was too old to attend. The golden days were numerous and valuable, rich cakes and rare fruits were sent from the west and south expressly for the occasion. The newly remade gown bestowed upon Dr. Coleman $50 in cash and sent a five dollar note, and a richly decorated cake to Mrs. Coleman.

Mr. Moseley began life as a poor boy, but at present, is one of the wealthiest men in McLean county, owning heavy interests in Calhoun and vicinity. The HERALD extends to him and his faithful wife, hearty and sincere congratulations upon this momentous occasion in their lives and hopes that many happy years may be given them in the future.

ROCKFORD.

A Large Crowd—Base Ball—Gift Distribution—News—Personal.
ROCKFORD, Ky., June 13, '87.—By far, the largest crowd seen in Rockford for twelve months, was here Saturday, drawn by the several attractions of the day. The day was warm and bright, with a strong wind to make it pleasant. "Squire Ross opened his first court, and cleaned up the docket with neatness and dispatch, and with great credit to himself.

The Macks came down according to appointment, with blood in their eyes. They came confidently expecting to mop up the earth with the poor disheartened Rocks, and everybody else thought they would win. Wellington said, "nothing but a battle lost, is half so melancholy as a battle won." The Rocks doggedly refused to stand and be mopped. As a matter of fact, the Macks "came to scold and remained to pray," for all of a sudden, the Rocks concluded to do the mopping of the town, and the longer they played the more they mopped, closing the game with the right to bats, and 45 to 35. Your correspondent is at sea when it comes to the score, but it was a base ball, for he knows less about it than a pig knows of the seventh heaven, and is ignorant of its nomenclature, as that name is of some of the Rocks, say how the Macks got skunked, whatever that is, and I suppose badly whitewashed, as I saw a large bucket of execrable soap being carried up for that purpose. It seemed that the Rocks' Overton is a fine pitcher, the Macks understood his curves, and so long as he pitched, they leaned in the game, but when the Rocks changed to a right hand pitcher, with Wood Wilcox and Bob Maddox at the bat, it was "farewell" to the Macks. This was about the fourth round, and the Rocks warmed up to their work—Markus of Queensberry rules I think they called it—and with swinging right and left hands, they knocked the Macks clean under the ropes. Then in the next round they got in what I believe is called a terrific upper cut, which put the Rocks to sleep, with the count at above stated. It is said there was some fine fighting on both sides. I suppose there was. I saw a man standing in the sun, with a cane in his hand, a statue, when all at once, without the slightest provocation, he started up as if to save his life, and ran fifty yards like he was a feather on a windmill. The Rocks, stood for a time as if expecting something, and was counted out before he had moved a muscle. Then a batsman, feeling he had a four pound ball, and when he quit chewing on it, his nose was turned up so he could see down his nostrils. All this time the Rocks were in the game, but I can't say, but everybody praised Mr. Spalding's umpiring as excellent.

Reid, Haden & Co.'s drawing took place at 4 o'clock. The plan of drawing was simple and the prizes were made. The name of each prize was written upon a ticket and put in a bag, where they all could be well shuffled. The tickets were then drawn, and was put in another bag, where, by shaking, they could be mixed. Mr. E. G. Rowe, who would not let it be called a lottery, but a drawing of prizes, and on referring to the register, it was found that Robert Maddox held that prize, and thus they proceeded until they were all drawn in the following order:

TICKET. PRIZE. NAME.
No. 1884 $10 Buggy.....J. S. G. Falkner.
" 1011 Pair Saddle's Saddle.....Chas. Reid.
" 1012 Pair Saddle's Saddle.....Ed. Haden.
" 1013 Accordian.....Ed. Haden.
" 823 Milk Handkerchief.....Dr. Stowers.
" 294 Pocket Knife.....Joe Overburn.
" 270 Cigar Stand.....Chas. Reid.
" 217 Gold Time and Jewel.....Chas. Reid.
" 304 Oil Painting.....Mannie Stowers.
" 1300 Silver Pickle Stand.....Al. Brown.
" 174 Banjo.....Len Engler.
" 34 Ladies Cigar Case.....Chas. Reid.
" 208 Silver Watch.....Alex. Maddox.
" 257 Set Knives & Forks.....J. T. Casheir.
" 303 Parlor Lamp.....Wm. Benton.
" 6000 One and a half horse Farm.....Miss Ed. Jackson, of California.

This completes the list, except the bottle of Godfrey's Cordial, which has been awarded to Joe Daniel from the first, and the $5 to be given to one holding the greatest number of tickets, has not yet been determined.

As to the merit of this feature in merchandising, it is hard to estimate it. Reid, Haden & Co. who have done it, have made money, yet they are more than satisfied with the results. The moral inducement, which has in it all the elements of success, is that the possibility of loss to the ticket holder, brought them cash trade they could get no other way, and out of the small profits they made, they were obliged to distribute a large number of valuable gifts among their highly appreciated customers without a cent of cost to them. The prizes were to the customers. It is rare indeed that one gets a chance to draw a valuable prize without incurring cost out of all proportion to the prize. In this, for the first time, the Macks got a chance to receive a ticket which cost them nothing, for instead of the company advancing prices, they were so anxious to hold their trade, they sold goods cheaper than ever before. So those who drew nothing have the satisfaction of knowing that they lost absolutely nothing. Reid, Haden & Co. will probably continue this feature in their business on a much larger scale, by doubling the number and value of prizes, and increasing and extending their line of goods, notice of which will duly appear in the HERALD. They are very glad of this opportunity to acknowledge the patronage of the Macks, and for their liberal patronage, and hope by square dealing, close prices and courteous treatment to merit the continued patronage of the Macks.

Now, that Capt. Liter has dug his own political grave, the loneliest, coldest and deepest ever dug in the penitentiary, he may as well devote the summer to preaching his own funeral. In fact, nothing remains to be done but to proceed with the services. His platform hasn't enough good solid material in it to run even a campaign four days, and how he is to eke out the long canvass is a puzzle to the nations. He may bring in some outside issues to fill the vast vacuum. For instance, he might get up a lecture on "who struck Billy Patterson?" and read this alternately with one of his letters to the HERALD. He might occasionally working in, by way of relief to the monotony, fifty or sixty pages of the last Agricultural Reports on his billboards, and long-continued diatribe. This would not only display his fitness and ability to a great advantage, but it would establish his entire devotion to the farming interest, and his acute comprehension of, and capacity to deal with vital current issues, is such upon which representative men have always had deep convictions.

Abbyville Notes.

June 9th, 1887.—Rev. D. J. K. Maddox filled his regular appointment here the first Saturday and Sunday. He treated his large and attentive audience on Sunday to a short address, and an interesting discourse on the subject of illness. Mr. George Carson, of No Creek, gave his initial lesson to the entire assembly, and was well received. He is a teacher of twelve nights duration. He is to teach at Woodwards Valley Saturday night.

The interesting school taught at this place by Miss Lela Cox, closed Friday. She, as a teacher, has shown herself to possess qualities of head and heart that eminently fit her for the school room. Her valedictory address to her pupils was a model of wisdom and sweetness, that enshrined her, amidst a halo of young pupils, in the hearts of her young pupils.

Mr. J. J. Turner and wife attended the picnic at Beda, Saturday. Mr. Wesley Crow, of near Newville, this county, has gone on a pleasure and health-recruiting trip to Illinois. Mr. Levi Williams and wife left yesterday to visit ex-Judge Ben Newton's family at Buford.

He is now recovering, but is still in a dangerous condition.

An item in my last letter made me profitable to the next issue. Miss Lela Cox attended church at Buck Creek, instead of Conference at Livermore.

Mr. Jake Duke, wife and little son, near Sulphur Springs, attended meeting here on Saturday. The pastor of the HERALD, who has read and admired the heartfelt memoirs written by one of our readers, is by one of her old pupils in welcoming her once again into our midst.

Miss Sarah Sandifer is visiting near Rockport, Ky., this week.

Quite a number of sportsmen from Owensboro are trying their skill in fishing and hunting on Rough Creek near the old locks this week.

Your correspondent, while in Owensboro last week, visited the office of the Messenger in the hope of being initiated into the mysteries of the "mightyest of the night,"—the printer. But hope proved futile inasmuch as we came away as ignorant as we went. The Editors, or whoever they were, evidently did not care for visitors. We'll not go again soon. GRAZIA.

Waller Notes.

As I have had nothing to say through the columns of the dear old HERALD for a long time, I again take up the quill to give you the news.

Farmers are very much behind with their work on account of too much rain. The prospects at present for a good crop is flattering. Tobacco is not doing so well, and there is but a small crop planted. R. L. Mitchell was probably the first to plant in this section. They are having quite an interesting Sabbath School at Sunrise church. The Sunday School picnic at Beda promises to be a grand affair.

On account of the absence of the deacons the church at Barnett Creek and Clear Run did not elect officers or commune. They postponed their meeting until August, and request a full attendance, as their will be business of importance to attend to.

The bridge across Panther Creek is being rebuilt.

Some of our farmers have just finished delivering tobacco.

Dr. G. W. Chapman clipped thirteen pounds of wool, in the grease, from a yearling lamb this spring, and the wool measured fourteen inches in length. In order to convince the most skeptical, and to relieve Joe Mulhatten of another great burden, I herewith enclose a sample of the wool, which tells its own tale. Who can beat it, and show the sample?

J. T. Allen's little child, who has been quite sick for some time, was glad to say, is better. G. T. W.

About the first of last March two tramps, giving their names as Frank and Jake Wallace, applied to Mr. J. W. Bagland for employment, and on last Friday, after fitting themselves out with a suit of clothes, three watches, value and fifty cents in money, left for unknown. They were about nineteen years of age, one five feet six inches high, the other four feet eight inches, and dark hair. One is spare and yellow-faced, with a delicate countenance, the other heavy-set, freckle-faced, and can not talk plain. When last seen one wore a striped cotton shirt and brown shoes, the other a new pair of sharp pointed shoes. They claimed to be from West Virginia. J. M. R.

Obituary.

ROSENE, Ky., June 6th, 1887.
James B. London was born in the State of Tennessee, May 16th, 1821. Came to Butler county, Ky., when eighteen years of age. He joined the M. E. Church South, at Cool Spring church when twenty-four years old, as a seeker of religion. Made a profession of his 34th year. February 5th, 1846, he was married to Miss Mary E. Hampton, Rev. Geo. Hancock officiating. In 1863, he moved to Ohio county, where he was the first to join the church at London's school house by letter. Some years after, he moved his membership to Rosine and lived a consistent member of the church. In the death of Dr. London, the church has lost a worthy member, the county a respected citizen, the wife an affectionate husband, the children a loving father. Although we mourn his departure, we mourn not as those who have no hope. His sickness was of short duration. Tuesday he was in Rosine, and Thursday evening, his spirit left for a happier clime. On the 23rd inst., his funeral services were held at his home, where he was laid to rest in the grave near Mt. Pleasant Church from the 34th Psalm: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright for the end of that man is peace." Although his sufferings were intense, yet he murmured not. His end was peace. May God sanctify this dispensation of His providence to the good of the community, and sustain by His grace, the bereaved widow and her sorrowing children. JAMES W. TAYLOR.
